

Invitation to Edgewood Master Plan Meeting

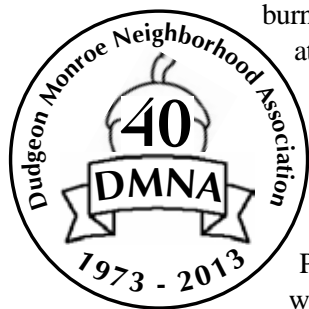

Neighbors of Edgewood and other interested residents of DMNA are urged to attend an Open Meeting on the Edgewood Campus Master Plan at 6:00 p.m., Tuesday, December 10, in the Washburn Heritage Room at Edgewood College. This will be your chance to learn more about the 10-Year Master Plan that Edgewood Elementary School, Edgewood High mittee and Alder Sue Ellingson at the meeting.

The Master Plan includes growth projections and additional buildings and parking that Edgewood projects are needed for that growth over the next 10 years. The Edgewood Liaison Committee, consisting of Edgewood staff and members of the DMNA and the Vilas Neighborhood Associations, has been meeting regularly to review and discuss the plan. Daryl Sherman, Shawn Schey and Tom Huber are DMNA representatives on the committee, and Alder Sue Ellingson is also a member.

You may review the plan before the meeting at: <http://www.edgewood.edu/about/campus-master-plan>.

If you have questions or concerns you want to express, please call or email Shawn Schey at shawnschey@yahoo.com or 238-7937 or Daryl Sherman at snippetswi@gmail.com or 238-5106.

School and Edgewood College will be submitting to the city. You will have an opportunity to express concerns and give feedback to the Edgewood Liaison Com-

Wine, Cheese and Chocolate

By Jane Albert, Social Committee Chair

It's back...the wine/cheese/chocolate tasting! Please join us on Thursday, January 30, 7:00-9:00 p.m. for our Annual Tasting Party. This year it will be held at the Mystery To Me bookstore at 1863 Monroe Street. We will have white and red wine to taste, yummy cheese, decadent chocolates, and sparkling juice all compliments of DMNA. Mark your 2014 calendars and come see your neighbors!

Winter Solstice Celebration

By Dorrie Sundquist, Parks and Gardens Committee

Calling all poets, musicians and spoken word performers: Whether you have played a 3,000 seat arena or just your living room, or somewhere in-between, the DMNA Parks and Gardens Committee wants you to share your talents at the annual Winter Solstice Celebration.

The Solstice Celebration and bonfire will be held Saturday,

December 21, from 6:30 to 9:30, in Glenwood Children's Park. There will be a bonfire, hot cider and s'mores, and we hope to provide a variety of entertainment. If you would like to share your talents around the bonfire with friends and neighbors, email dorriesundquist@yahoo.com with a brief description of what you would like to perform.

President's Message

Safety in our Neighborhood

Concerns have been raised about the residential burglaries in the Vilas, Greenbush and Regent neighborhoods during August and September. Captain Joe Balles of the South District Madison Police Department has been in communication with neighbors, alders and neighborhood association presidents.

In September, there was one burglary in the Dudgeon Monroe neighborhood while the resident was asleep at home. There have not been any other armed burglary incidents in the near West Side neighborhoods since September 11. In an October email, Captain Balles wrote:

"I am seeing an increase in 'suspicious person' and 'suspicious vehicle' reports which is a really GOOD thing. This tells me residents are aware of the recent crimes and call 911 when they see persons or cars which look out of place. I'm hopeful with all the work and awareness we are doing this fall, at the end of the year we may actually see a decrease in property crime for your neighborhoods (from past years). We need to remain vigilant. When the colder weather sets in, the burglary activity always tapers off."

Additional police resources were allocated to patrol the affected areas and address the crimes. Communication with college students and residents in the areas provided tips on how to avoid being victimized. Police note that in many cases, burglars entered homes where doors or windows were unlocked or unlatched. Laptop computers and other electronics were often targets of criminals. Police advise all of us to take our personal safety seriously. Recommendations include:

- Try not to walk alone at night, especially in dark or scarcely populated areas.
- Be careful about displaying cell phones or electronics when out in public.
- Wearing headphones, particularly at night, decreases needed situational awareness.
- If confronted by a robber, the best advice is to give up your property and don't resist.
- Keep your doors and windows locked—even when you're home.
- If you see suspicious or criminal behavior, do not hesitate, call 911.

Although suspects in the string of burglaries were recently apprehended, I am working with Alder Sue Ellingson and Captain Balles for a joint meeting with the Vilas Neighborhood Association in January/February 2014 to address neighborhood safety concerns.

Madison is rated the 4th safest city in the U.S. and the Dudgeon Monroe neighborhood is among the safest in Madison. Let's keep it that way.

Enjoy and shop in the neighborhood, Sherwood Malamud, DMNA President

Award for Pedestrian Flags

By Charlie Chrisanti, Transportation Chair

On Thursday, October 17, the DMNA was presented with the BeSafe Award for Advocacy for its role with pedestrian flags at the Safe Communities Madison-Dane County 7th Annual BeSafe Awards ceremony.

At the DMNA Council meeting on November 6th, the award was presented to Neuhauser Pharmacy for their efforts in helping to manage the flags in front of their store. Peg Breuer from Neuhauser was on hand to accept the award on behalf of the neighborhood residents, businesses, and visitors who have helped to make the flags a success.

These “ped flags” are tools pedestrians can use to signal motorists of their intention to cross the street, in keeping with the Wisconsin state law which requires that cars yield to pedestrians.

The success of the flags in the Dudgeon-Monroe neighborhood has led to widespread usage within Dane County. Since the flags were first introduced in the Dudgeon-Monroe neighborhood in 2001, these neighborhoods and communities have established sites of their own: Schenk- Atwood-Starkweather - Yahara (SASY), Vilas, Regent, Bay Creek, Westmoreland and Tenney Lapham neighborhoods in Madison; Villages of Marshall, DeForest and Cottage Grove;

and Cities of Stoughton and Middleton.

Many thanks to the many DMNA volunteers who work to maintain the flags and to all of you who continue to use them.

Homes for Butterflies on Path

By Sandy Stark, SW Path Chair

Talk about planting for the future! This fall, two sets of volunteers planted milkweed along the SW Path in order to attract and sustain the diminishing number of monarch butterflies migrating to and from Wisconsin in the years to come.

In September, our regular crews planted four flats of milkweed plants in various areas near our two prairies (Odana and Glenway) and in Prospect Gardens. We received the flats free from folks who work with Project Monarch to encourage such plantings in green spaces.

In October, Girl Scout Troop 2510, all fifth graders attending Randall School, showed up on a chilly Friday after school to help scatter milkweed, joe pye weed, and other seeds gathered for this event. As part of a Happy Habitats community service environmental badge they will earn, they also removed some of the always-persistent garlic mustard from path edges.

Their scout leaders, Patty Mullins, Sue Walaszek, and Sarah Kraak-Ripple, prepared them to identify and understand the problems invasive plants pose. I had asked Susan Slapnick, a restorationist and path volunteer, to help procure and bag seed pods for scattering that day. Based on the happy sounds and energy coming from the group as we moved from Virginia Terrace to Glenway, not to mention the number of silky seeds floating in the air, I'd say we just might have some future volunteers for path events and Project Monarch.

Behind the Scenes: Christina Kantor

By Linell Davis

You may not see her helping out at neighborhood events and you don't hear her speaking at meetings, so you may not know Christina Kantor as an active supporter of the neighborhood. She is one of those people whose work is essential but largely invisible.

Christina and her family moved to Dudgeon-Monroe in 2006, drawn by what they had seen of community life when they visited her husband's brother who already lived here. "I loved the neighborhood and wanted to get involved, but it had to be something I could do on my own." She answered the appeal for volunteers in the Hornblower and began to help out with advertising for the newsletter. Before long she became the advertising coordinator.

She knows the ads are important because they support the newsletter, but she makes it sound so simple. "I just send out an email and the slots sell themselves." When pressed she admits that there is more to it than that. She visits new businesses and the few that are not internet enabled. When she was studying for her master's degree in public health, time became more precious, but she was determined to keep the ad coordinator job. That was when the idea to reduce the work load by selling ads on an annual basis and making it possible to order ads online was born. She worked with Al Nettleton to set up an online system.

That was a great experience for Christina because she learned new skills such as how to create a web-based order form. The new system is further streamlined by creating an automated email that serves as an invoice for the advertisers. She appreciates the business people she deals with who have to do more when working with her than they have to do when working with commercial publications. They know that she is a volunteer and are most helpful in making her job as easy as possible.

Christina is now looking for a job in community health, hoping that her grant writing experience will help her search. Yes, that and your commitment to community life, skill in solving practical problems and willingness to work behind the scenes.

Hornblower Ad Coordinator.

Correction:

The Fall Hornblower article "DMNA History: Tracks to Paths." incorrectly listed 1977 as the last year that trains operated in our neighborhood. From documents available on the web, it appears that trains operated by Wisconsin & Southern continued serving their last customer, Brunsell Lumber, until 1997. The Wisconsin & Calumet had earlier abandoned the railroad in 1977, but three different companies then operated it in succession until 1997.

Snow and Ice...Be Nice!

By Linell Davis

With winter upon us, it is time to review what we need to know to keep ourselves, our neighbors, and the environment safe.

Shoveling snow is good exercise, so get out and shovel often. This keeps sidewalks clear and safe for everyone. The more you shovel, the less ice will build up. Icy sidewalks are dangerous not only for those who use them, but also for vegetation and Lake Wingra. That is because you will need to use salt or a sand/salt mixture which creates a polluting runoff.

The city requires property owners to remove snow from the sidewalk by noon of the day after the snow stops. Residents should clear the entire width of the sidewalk and shovel the snow onto their own property, not onto the street. Violators can be fined if the city has to clear the walks, and the property owner pays the costs.

Be nice and neighborly by offering to clear snow for those who are less able than you. If you are elderly or disabled, call the Building Inspection office (266-4551) to get linked to an agency that provides snow removal assistance. Call the same number to report a sidewalk or intersection that needs to be cleared.

To help in your snow-clearing efforts, the city makes piles of sand available to residents at several locations. Take a pail and shovel to the Glenway Golf Course parking lot off Speedway to get a supply of sand. Other westside locations can be found at <http://cityofmadison.com/residents/winter/residents/sand>.

Be nice to the environment by choosing an alternative to salt to deal with ice. Mixtures containing calcium chloride and magnesium chloride are greener, but use them sparingly. Calcium magnesium acetate and potassium acetate preparations are greener still but more expensive. The greenest choice of all is elbow grease using a broom and an ice breaking tool.

Find updated information on snow emergencies, snow plowing, and parking regulations on the Madison website at <http://cityofmadison.com/residents/winter>. You can sign up to have updates sent to your computer or cell phone.

Monroe Street Christmas Walk

The Annual Monroe Street Christmas Walk will be held in the 1700-1900 blocks of Monroe Street on Sunday, December 8, from 12:00-4:00. The Monroe Street Carolers sing songs of the season in each of the participating shops and restaurants. Many of these Monroe Street businesses will be providing holiday refreshments, entertainment, or other special activities, and there will be a prize drawing at every participating business.

Karner Blue Candle and Supply Opening

You can now purchase handmade candles and supplies for making your own candles at the Karner Blue Candle shop scheduled to open by the end of November at 1915 Monroe Street. Supplies will include quality wax, fragrances, and wicks and accessories such as pottery candle holders/bowls/mugs. There will also be candle making classes and a place for children to make granulated wax candles, according to owner Lyschel Bersch. You can find more information at: www.danebuylocal.com/directory/karner-blue-candle-and-supply-llc.html.

Barriques Moves Next Door

Barriques recently moved to its new location at 1825 Monroe Street, just next door to its previous location. The new space, formerly the Grace Chosy Gallery, is significantly larger, with 30-40 additional seats. There will be more focus on serving evening customers and the menu and tap beers lines are expanded. A private room for special events will also be available.

Update on Knickerbocker/Monroe Development

Demolition of the Town and Country gas station is slated for mid-November and the house at 665 Knickerbocker is being moved to a new location on the Eastside, according to the developer, Fred Rouse. The goal for completion of the development is June 1. It will consist of 21 units, with 1-bedroom, 2-bedroom and efficiency apartments and 21 parking stalls. The first floor on Monroe Street will be commercial space.

MedDrop Box at West District Station

A MedDrop box provided by Safe Communities of Madison/Dane County is now available in the West Police District Station lobby, 1710 McKenna Blvd. This is a safe way to discard unused and expired medications. For information, including what can and cannot be discarded, visit <http://www.safercommunity.net/meddrop.php>

Commonwealth Repairs

Commonwealth Street is slated for reconstruction in 2014. Updates will be on the DMNA website as they become available.

Traffic Complaints

If you notice traffic violations on streets in our neighborhood, you can report a violation or concern at: www.cityofmadison.com/reportaproblem/traffickenforcement.cfm. Concerns are routed to the appropriate district and shared with officers and with MPD's Traffic Enforcement Safety Team.

You can also contact the Speeder's Hotline at 266-4624 with the license plate number of the violator. Drivers of offending vehicles typically receive warning letters in the mail.

From Gas & Groceries to Coffee & Restaurants: 40 Years on Monroe Street

By Karen Redfield

Shortly after I moved to Madison in the late 1970's, a co-worker suggested that we go Christmas shopping on Monroe Street. It was a magical place with the shops and the lights—and a true neighborhood in a big city. Despite the changes, I still feel this way, and I'm happy to call this neighborhood home.

As Barbara Samuel remembers, Monroe Street in the 1970's was lined with gas stations and grocery stores. There were 12 stations, including Larry's Super Service, Parman's, and Towne and Country. Now only Percy's and Budd's remain for auto repair. Monroe Street also boasted several groceries and other food shops: the Wingra Market, Colonial Bakery, Fauerbach's Fine Foods, and Millin's. Ken Kopp opened his grocery in 1980, buying Fauerbach's on the corner where Trader Joe's stands today. There was also a Rennebohm's back in the day. It was also a "buy local" street in other ways, Barb remembers. A neighborhood resident could walk to stores and buy or rent appliances, hardware, videos, pet supplies, housewares, futons, and gifts. Some of us even remember the Hourglass, where one could buy lingerie. If you wanted to go out to eat, the main choices were Ovens of Brittany and the Laurel Tavern, though for a while Dotty Dumpling's was on the corner where Associated Bank now stands. Most of the goods and services families needed were here.

Though most of the service stations are gone, the traffic has definitely increased.

Jackie Brown, of the Alpine Tailor Shop, commented on this increase. The new "fuel" seems to be coffee. Jackie sees the many coffee shops as catering to younger people. Peg Breuer, of Neuhauser's Pharmacy, sees an "all-day busyness" and feels the street is "more vibrant longer in the day," with all the restaurants and Trader Joe's longer hours. Ken Kopp's closed promptly at 6:00 p.m.

Some residents also commented on the new "lifestyle" businesses: clothing stores, a fitness and yoga business, and a new bookstore.

As Peg Breuer notes, Monroe Street is "ever-changing." What will it look like in the future? Jackie Brown feels that only time will tell.

Supervisor Erickson Reports

The primary activity for Dane County government at this time of year is the budget for the next year. The budget will probably be passed and signed before this issue is printed. The proposed operating budget is $508 million and the capital budget is $44.7 million.

The largest part is for human services, which is $252.2 million. One of the largest items is $2 million in capital funding of Domestic Abuse Intervention Services (DAIS) for a new domestic violence shelter. Other initiatives include expansion of an "Early Childhood Zone" created this year at Leopold Elementary School; senior citizen programs; plus funding a 'living wage' for workers providing services to people with developmental disabilities.

Environmental and lakes initiatives include $2 million in capital funding for lands with large percentages of phosphorus run-off; manure treatment; purchasing 450 acres along the Sugar River and the Holy Wisdom Monastery property; bike paths; and the creation of a "Dane County Youth Conservation Corps" in partnership with Operation Fresh Start.

Other items include the purchase of 13 additional highway trucks, eight of them snow plows and all fueled by CNG; new pavilions at the Alliant Energy Center for World Dairy Expo; the Arctic Passage and dining area at the zoo; more parking stalls at the airport; and climate change preparedness.

My budget items include:

- Increasing the sustainability fund;
- Funding for a permanent, homeless day center;
- More staff time for the Office of Lakes & Watersheds; and
- Outreach to LGBT seniors.

Thanks for Help with Membership Drive

Many thanks to our DMNA Area Representatives and Block Captains for knocking on doors for our annual Membership Drive this fall. Our strong membership participation keeps our organization strong and able to accomplish many activities to enrich our community.

Alder Sue Ellingson Reports

“Placemaking” is planning for outdoor spaces that encourage people to go outside and do things together. The goal is to develop places for people, not cars. Memorial Union terrace is an example. The City does extensive planning for buildings, but very little planning for the spaces between the buildings. I’ll be working to change that.

Do you have ideas for placemaking in our neighborhood? How about a farmers’ market at Knickerbocker Place? A mini-Taste of Madison on Monroe Street? Other? Please send thoughts to me at: district13@cityofmadison.com.

Since Noble Wray’s retirement, the Police and Fire Commission has started work toward hiring a new chief. By state law, the Common Council has no say in the process. The PFC opened the search to applicants outside Madison, as well as those within the city. Captain Joe Balles, our South District captain, said he will apply. I have enormous respect for Captain Joe and I hope he gets the job, but there will be many strong applicants.

The police arrested Kendridge Dillard for a recent armed robbery. There is evidence that Dillard is also responsible for several other armed robberies in the neighborhood. He is being held at the Dane County jail.

If you haven’t been to the new downtown library, you should go. Wow. It’s at 201 W. Mifflin Street, open: Mondays-Thursdays 9:00-9:00, Fridays 9:00-6:00, Saturdays 9:00-5:00, Sundays (September-May) 1:00-5:00.

Sign up for email updates from me (about once a week) and also updates about snow plowing, police, and many others on the web at: my.cityofmadison.com.

zoning. The TSS, permitting mixed use developments, is a commercial designation in the new zoning code that went into effect January 2013. This came to light when neighbors researched zoning changes after a home on Knickerbocker Street was sold and scheduled for demolition as part of the Town and Country development.

The potential reconfiguration of the Commonwealth and Monroe Street intersection is another issue, with planning to take place this spring. The Zoning and Transportation Committees will work with Alder Ellingson to obtain more information and facilitate neighborhood input.

Given the pace of development along

Monroe Street, the committee expects to continue monitoring the impact of new projects. There have been 2 new apartment complexes and approval of 3 more in the past 18 months, accounting for 85 new dwelling units and over 120 parking stalls. Future developments are possible at other TSS-zoned properties.

If you are interested in future zoning projects, the committee welcomes ideas, concerns and new members. Meetings are 7:00 p.m. the second Tuesday of each month in the Wingra School Library. See dmna.org/zoningcommittee for a summary of current neighborhood zoning issues and links to City of Madison resources.
